

Early in this century the American astronomer Percival Lowell wrote a couple of books that stirred up a bitter scientific feud over the planet Mars.

The books were "Mars and Its Canals" (1906) and "Mars as the Abode of Life" (1908)—their theme being that the planet has vegetable and animal life, the latter of an order presumably higher than man since conditions on Mars are more exacting than here on Earth.

What I remember about Lowell's books is this: The surface of Mars shows straight lines, presumably the lines of the canals that are supposed to carry water from the melting polar ice caps down to the planet's equator. This was the key to Lowell's theory, for it is axiomatic that a straight line never occurs in nature—nature's cracks are crooked, a straight line, therefore, would indicate the hand of man, or his equivalent.

The facts about Mars are these: The planet owing to its smaller size has lost more of its atmospheric moisture than Earth has; there, therefore, are no oceans, only lakes and marshes. Water is at a premium, and the assumption is that over millions of years the men of Mars have excavated canals to bring down the melting waters from the polar ice caps to the parched equator. Lowell needed—and other astronomers had to agree with him on this observation—that as the polar cap melted the straight lines running from the cap to the equator turned from white to brown to green.

But when the facts were extended to support a theory that all this was the work of human or super-human hands the scientific tending and fussing began.

Now we read in an Associated Press dispatch of yesterday that University of Chicago scientists are about to apply new electronic tests through a telescope to determine (1) whether the green patches on Mars are actually vegetable matter, and (2) whether those white caps at the poles of Mars are really ice or only carbon dioxide.

If the answers are (1) vegetable and (2) ice the original theory of the late Mr. Lowell that Mars has some very fine scientific minds of its own may very well be true—for where there is vegetable matter and ice you can expect animal matter as well.

BY JAMES THRASHER
Racing Corn, Weary Wheat
Make Few Grains of Sense
That slump in the grain market touched off a bigger blizzard of guesses, contradictions and general mystery than the late summer's drought General's political intentions. This is the break, said one expert. It doesn't mean a thing said another. Wait and see, said a third.

Probably a lot of people who don't usually read the financial news devoured the front page stories on grain. That may have added confusion to worry. For it's likely that these new readers didn't know that it is the custom of financial writers to endow securities and commodities with personal feelings and actions.

They read that corn led a downhill race while hard reeled under heavy assaults and wheat struggled to rise and then fell back wearily. They read that the New York Stock Exchange was weak and nervous, and that the London exchange was sympathetic. They must have been confused.

We felt a little that way ourselves. But the feeling was brought on by a couple of non-financial items we had been reading about the time that corn went racing down the hill and wheat became tumbling.

First there was that Federal Court deportation hearing of Gerhardt Eisler, said to be the top Communist in America. Comrade Eisler was sitting right there in the courtroom, the story said, and his attorney was seriously arguing that he had been barred from this country by an exclusion of order in 1941 so he couldn't possibly be here now.

Then we came upon a story out of Washington. The representatives of an association of apartment house owners were asking a congressional committee to end all rent controls. The story said, and his attorney was seriously arguing that he had been barred from this country by an exclusion of order in 1941 so he couldn't possibly be here now.

So the news from the grain market found us a little dazed. As we read it we suddenly wondered if the grains might not have been feeling the same way before they started racing and reeling and flopping wearily about.

Had wheat heard about the housing shortage that isn't? Maybe so. And if there's any housing shortage, how could wheat be sure there was a wheat shortage—which was wheat's excuse for climbing higher and higher.

Had corn heard about Eisler. Perhaps. And if Mr. Eisler seemed so obviously present, really was the little man who wasn't there, how about all that money that people had been paying for corn? Maybe that wasn't real either.

So it could be that wheat and corn suggested to oats and hard and cottonseed oil that the best thing for them to do was climb down and start back where they belonged.

This explanation may have certain logical weaknesses. But, like the New York Stock Exchange, we've been a little nervous lately. And all we can say is we hope those flying saucers put in another appearance—at least till we're feeling better.

Showdown on Cut in Marshall Plan Spending

By JOHN L. STEELE

Washington, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee headed today for a showdown fight with Senate "revisionists" who want to slash Marshall plan spending.

From all indications, the impending battle will pit the Michigan Republican squarely against Sen. Robert A. Taft, R. O., chairman of the powerful GOP Policy Committee and a presidential hopeful.

Vandenberg's committee unanimously approved late yesterday the authorization of $5,300,000,000 for the European recovery program for the 12 months beginning April 1. ERP spending would be at the same rate as asked by President Truman who had called for $5,300,000,000 for 15 months.

The committee also voted to authorize the 51-month program which the administration wanted, though it did not put any overall price tag on it. This, said Vandenberg, was "the trademark of continuity."

Without specifying any figure, the committee recommended "such appropriations through June 30, 1952, as the Congress may subsequently decide."

The committee vote represented a major triumph for the president and Secretary of State George C. Marshall, who have urged repeatedly that Congress enact an "adequate" long-range aid program.

"I am told," said Marshall in Knoxville, Tenn., "that a good beginning has been made."

However, there were immediate indications that the bill would occasion a knock-down-drag-out fight when it reaches the Senate floor.

Taft admitted it is a "great improvement" over the blueprint drawn up by the State Department. But he added:

"I think the amount is still too high. The revisionists' bloc announced a meeting for next week to plan its floor strategy. Sen. Clyde M. Reed, R., Kans., one of the 20-odd GOP senators in the group, denounced the $5,300,000,000 figure as "too large."

When the Foreign Relations Committee rejected their proposals to curtail the aid program, the "revisionists" promised to carry their fight to the floor in the form of restrictive amendments.

Other stumbling blocks before the bill include the Senate and House Appropriations Committees which have the final word on the funds. Vandenberg acknowledged that he had reached no understanding with Chairman Styles Bridges, R., N. H., of the Senate committee who has been sharply critical of the bill.

The Foreign Relations Committee's vote was subject to last-minute reconsideration on Tuesday. But Vandenberg left no doubt that he would stand.

"If the bill," he said, "that the present committee draft represents a meeting of many divergent minds in respect to this very complex problem and that the result is wholly in keeping with the basic principle of the program, I am in favor of it."

15-Year-Old Girl Kills Her Mother

Franklin, N. J., Feb. 14 — (AP) — A 15-year-old schoolgirl was charged with murder today in the fatal bludgeoning of her mother during an argument over a dance.

Police Chief Herbert C. Irons said Marion Russo would be removed from Franklin hospital, where she was treated for bruises and shock, to the Sussex county jail today.

An autopsy last night showed that the mother, Mrs. Lillian Russo, 35, died of a brain hemorrhage.

Irons said she was found dead in the cellar of their home, her body partly stuffed in a sack.

The police chief said the girl quarreled with her mother over whether she should go to a dance last night at the high school.

He said the girl gave him an oral statement that after her mother hit her with an iron pipe, she struck her mother over the head with a beer bottle in self defense.

British to Send Wright Plane Home

Washington, Feb. 14 — (P) — The Wright brothers plane which made the world's first powered flight with a man aboard is coming home after a 20-year exile.

The Kensington Museum of Science announced at London last night it will try to send the fruit biplane "Kittyhawk" back to the United States.

The Smithsonian Institution, a government museum in Washington, has promised it the place of highest honor, which is its due.

It was a feat with the Smithsonian over credit for the world's first heavier-than-air flight which led Orville Wright to ship the little aircraft abroad in 1923.

The Smithsonian had displayed the plane in its "aerodrome" as "the first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world, capable of sustained free flight."

Langley was secretary of the Smithsonian. His flying machine crashed into the Potomac river during a take-off a few days before Wilbur and Orville Wright flew theirs at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903.

In 1943 the Smithsonian issued a public apology for what it called its "erroneous" statements.

Orville Wright died two weeks ago at Dayton, Ohio. He left a will which gave the plane to the British museum unless before his death he asked for its return.

Last week it was disclosed he made this request in 1943. The Smithsonian acknowledged correspondence with him to that effect.

The Kensington museum said it is ready to send the plane to America as soon as it receives notice from the executors of Orville Wright's estate "regarding the home of the machine."

To Add New Phone Circuits in Hope

Five new long distance telephone circuits will be added by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company this year between Hope and other cities. W. Q. Warren, district manager for the company, announced today.

"Long distance service is on its way to prewar quality or better," he added.

"This is part of a state-wide program to add more than 200 long distance circuits in 1948."

Warren said "A construction program of this size is needed to meet the demand which has grown as Arkansas has continued to increase in importance as a producer of both farm and industrial goods."

Hope will benefit from the lines added in other sections of the state, as well as from the lines which connect directly into the central office here. "This is true," Warren explained, "because facilities must be available both at the exchange from which you're calling and at the exchange receiving the call."

"At the same time that new long distance lines are being built, the company will continue its program of enlarging central offices to care for the heavy demand for local service and its program of extending lines into rural areas adjoining its exchanges," Warren stressed.

"To keep all projects moving at a good pace, we will use a record number of construction crews within the state on all phases of the job."

Hempstead Youth Sentenced in Federal Court

Texarkana — A 16-year-old Spring Hill boy, Haskell Meirs, was ordered committed to a correctional school for two years yesterday in Texarkana Federal Court by Judge Harry J. Lemley after he pleaded guilty to the theft of a motorcycle in Texarkana last August. He was charged with juvenile delinquency and received sentence under that count.

In other action Willie James Clark received a year and nine months for the theft of an automobile at Anniston, Ala. while on probation. He was apprehended in the car on Feb. 11 at Hope.

Trust the Little Woman to Take Advantage of Everything Even Valentine's Day

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Feb. 13 — (P) — Wilbur Peck thought there was something unusual this morning when he pulled from the trunk a plate of chipped beef and carrots before him — his favorite breakfast.

Usually she told him this dish took too long to prepare on days when he had to go to the office. But after ten years a married man learns to take in silence any small bonus that comes his way.

So Wilbur munched on until he noticed something strange about the breakfast table. A bowl in the corner contained a dozen fresh roses.

"What are those?" he mumbled. "Please don't talk when your mouth is full, Wilbur," said Trellis Mae.

Marines Try to Get Release of Americans

Shanghai, Feb. 14 — (AP) U. S. Marines phoned dropped leaflets today in Chinese Communist areas near Tsingtao in an effort to open negotiations for release of four Americans held by the Reds.

A spokesman for the U. S. embassy said the navy was in contact with the Communists and "is doing everything possible to arrange their release."

The Chinese Communist radio, in a broadcast picked up by the Associated Press in San Francisco, confirmed yesterday that five marines were captured Christmas Day and one of them had died of wounds.

The Reds charged the marines were aiding government troops in an engagement north of Tsingtao, in north China.

U. S. state authorities have answered similar charges with emphatic denials. In this case, four marines were on special passes for a hunting trip and the fifth was absent without leave. Their bullet-riddled, burned jeep was found later.

Marine corps headquarters identified the five as Pfc. Charles J. Brayton Jr., Fort Jay, Governor's Island, N. Y.; Pfc. Carrol W. Dickerson, Olab, Ky.; Pfc. Robert Hart, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Pfc. Thomas Kapodistria, Buffalo, N. Y., and Col. William L. Pollard, Fort Worth, Tex.

In making the embassy spokesmen deny the charges, the report that there was a "surprised" statement from Adm. Charles M. Cooke, Jr., regarding the capture and efforts toward the marines' release.

Taft Heads for Denver on Tour

By JACK BELL
En Route to Denver With Taft, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Senator Taft (R., Ohio), a self-styled "true liberal," tried his political luck today with Colorado's 15 votes in the Republican presidential race.

The Ohio headed for Denver and talked Republican political speech on national defense tonight. He expected to talk Republican policies generally at a quick visit to Colorado Springs for a noon luncheon.

Taft has given advance notice that he favors the "super air force. He has vigorously opposed universal military training.

In fact, the Ohio senator had suggested that he would like to have federal spending on an "air force superior to any in the world, even if the money has to be subtracted from the $6,000,000,000 President Truman has asked to start operation of the Marshall plan.

Neither has he minced words about universal military training. Taft told a Lincoln birthday audience at Omaha last night:

"There can be no more serious mistake than the one that the nation has made in conscripting young men from their homes and schools and occupations."

Taft made it plain that he believes that "true liberals" regard freedom of individual action as more sacred than almost any activity, except possibly the providing of food for the hungry.

Snyder Silent on Democratic Party Split

Atlanta, Feb. 13 — (AP) — Because "I am a southerner myself," Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, a native of Jonesboro, Ark., has declined to comment on the threatened Southern Democratic revolt against President Truman's civil rights program.

While Snyder was a visitor here, his Washington office announced he had accepted an invitation to speak at the annual convention of the Red River Valley Improvement Association at Shreveport, La., April 7. Delegates from Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma will attend.

Rockefeller Heir Weds Mrs. Sears

By WILBUR JENNINGS
Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 14 — (P) — Winthrop Rockefeller, heir to a fabulous fortune, was married in the first minutes of this St. Valentine's day to Mrs. Barbara Seagraves, daughter of Lithuanian immigrants.

The 35-year-old Rockefeller, one of the heirs to the millions of his grandfather, John D. Rockefeller, and his pretty blonde bride, 31, were married at 12:14 (EST).

The Rev. Winslow S. Drummond, pastor of the West Palm Beach Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

The newlyweds planned to slip quietly away, later today for an undisclosed honeymoon spot. They plan to be gone about 10 days.

The simple single ring ceremony was conducted against a floral backdrop in a room overlooking Lake Worth in the winter estate of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Guest, long time friends of the bride.

The ceremony was attended only by the bride couple; Lawrence Rockefeller, brother of Winthrop, who was best man; Isabel Paul, sister of the bride who was maid of honor; Mr. and Mrs. Guest; Alexander M. Cochran, Mrs. Guest's brother, and the minister.

After the vows were spoken, tall good looking Rockefeller leaned over and kissed his vivacious five-foot six-inch bride.

A reception before the wedding was attended by 50 guests who ranked among society's most noted figures and included the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Count and Countess Jean De La Valence, Mrs. Hudson Vanderbilt, Herbert Pulitzer and Mrs. Brenda Frazier Kelly.

One name, John Seagraves, appeared by mistake on the select guest list, later proved to be an accordion player hired to entertain the guests.

The bride wore a simple pink linen dress with matching shoes which she bought a week ago and called "something old." For "something borrowed" she carried a handkerchief loaned by Mrs. Guest. A blue orchid in the center of a spray of white orchids was the "something blue."

In contrast with the wealth and social position the new Mrs. Rockefeller commands by virtue of her marriage, who was born the daughter of humble Lithuanian immigrants in Pennsylvania, the family later moved to Chicago, where they lived back of the stockyards, and then Indiana where she attended high school. She was born Jevue Paulekute and a n d later changed her name to Eva Paul.

She appeared in several state plays including "Tobacco Road," "You Can't Take It With You" and a number of motion pictures.

Her first husband, Richard Sears, a third secretary in the American embassy in Paris.

The newlyweds first met about 18 months ago at a dinner given by Mrs. Elizabeth (Liz) Whitney.

Scout Hero on Nationwide Radio Program

The voice of "Star" Scout Howard Kimball, of troop 54, De Queen, Ark., was heard on the newscast of the Mutual network at 8:15 last night. Young Kimball told the story of how his life-saving training at Camp Pioneer last summer enabled him to save the life of a friend, on last July 4.

Mutual used the story in paying tribute to the Boy Scouts of America on the 38th Anniversary of Boy Scouting in America.

Mutual's news chief, Millon Burrows, requested KXAR to record Kimball's story for use in climactic National Boy Scout week. Local Field Scout Executive Arvil Hickman brought Howard Kimball to the KXAR studios to make the recording on Wednesday of this week.

Scout Kimball received the life-saving medal for heroism from the National Court of Honor of Boy Scouts of America. The award was presented in a court of honor in De Queen on Thursday night, Feb. 12.

U. S. Drops Charges Against Twenty Japanese

Tokyo, Feb. 13—(AP)—Major war crimes charges against 20 top crust Japanese, including five former members of the Tojo cabinet, have been dropped.
A high authority said tonight Washington accepted recommendations of Chief Prosecutor Joseph K. Keenan that the current trial of Hiroto Tojo and 24 other wartime leaders wind up the international proceedings. That trial is nearing its end.
The other 20 are in custody, their sentences being transferred from the international prosecution section to allied headquarters' legal section. The latter may decide to try some or all of them on lesser charges.
They include onetime wealthy industrialists, militarists and these five members of Tojo's wartime cabinet: Shinsuke Kishi, cabinet minister; Lt. Gen. Kiyomasa Ando, home ministry; Michio Iwamura, justice; Kazuo Aoki, greater East Asia; and Vice Adm. Ken Terashima, communications and railways.
Keenan's recommendation to drop war plotting charges against the 20 arose from his contention that the trial of Tojo and his 24 co-defendants takes care of the "major plotters." Informed sources said also that trial expenses caused concern. Unofficial estimates placed the cost of the Tojo trial at nearly $7,000,000 by mid-January. The trial began in June, 1946.

Leo, Laraine to Marry Again Soon

Santa Monica, Calif., Feb. 14—(AP)—Laraine Day and Leo Durocher, said to be going to be married again soon.
They obtained a license here yesterday and, although neither would say when the ceremony will take place, it appeared certain they would not delay the date beyond February 25, when Durocher is due to leave for the Brooklyn Dodgers' training camp at Santa Domingo. The baseball manager gave his age as 42 and the marriage application said he has been married twice previously. Miss Day said she is 27.
She and Durocher were married in El Paso, Tex., in January, 1947, a day after her interdictory divorce decree from James Ray Hendricks, airport manager, was issued in California.
A few hours before the El Paso wedding, she had obtained a Mexican divorce decree at Juarez.
The Texas marriage was not recognized in California because the year required for Miss Day's interdictory decree to become final had not elapsed.
Superior Judge George A. Dockweiler, who had granted the decree, had some harsh words to say about the El Paso wedding and ordered Miss Day to show cause why the decree should not be set aside.
Judge Dockweiler later was disqualified from hearing the case and the California decree was upped by Judge James Ingall W. Bull, who held Miss Day's marriage to Durocher void in California.

Merchants in Russia Get a Warning
By WALTER CRONKITE
Moscow, Feb. 13—(UP)—The top trade official in Moscow warned producers today they would be prosecuted for crimes against the Soviet state if they continued to pass off shoddy goods, poor service and false labels.
The official, N. Tikhomirov, head of the trade section of the Moscow City Soviet Executive committee said this practice was permitted under wartime emergencies but it must stop now.
Writing in the Moscow Bolshevik Tikhomirov blasted especially at producers who turn out poor quality clothing from all kinds of material just so they can meet their quotas under the five-year plan.
He also pointed an accusing finger at meat suppliers who still peddle on packages unwarranted by the meat all kinds of material just so they can meet their quotas under the five-year plan.

THE STORY: Ann Bancroft—suddenly she was wowed. Someone has wowed the soles of her new brown pumps. Someone who evidently wants her to slip and fall down the steep staircase at Tophill. Ann discovers the can of wax in her closet. Meanwhile, Laurie and Rinda are waiting impatiently for her to go to the country club with them to meet Rush and Tommy. Laurie's fiancée, for lunch. Laurie is Ann's 10-year-old sister. Rinda was Ann's college roommate, just coming to Tophill for a long delayed visit. Ann makes excuses for holding them up.

They walked down the upstairs hall to the staircase, the three of them, Laurie and Rinda and Ann. Laurie, tall and dark and elegant; Laurie and Ann both smaller, their soft red hair marking them indubitably as sisters. Then Laurie hurried on ahead, running almost as Ann had started to do earlier. Laurie's high heels clattered noisily on the steps and it was all Ann could do not to cry out, to tell Laurie not to run, to warn her that the steps were treacherous. Except that to do so would be to give herself away, admit her knowledge of danger, her awareness of peril. She bit back the words and Laurie reached the top landing, wheeled by the grandfather clock to say, "I'll get the car started" and flew on down, out of sight.
Rinda laughed.
"She makes me feel my age," she said and Ann nodded.
She and Rinda went down the steps together, as they had gone down other steps in the past, side by side. Steps that had led to classrooms, to house parties, to week-ends in New York. It was Rinda who had said, "Wear those shoes with your suit, Ann, they're beautiful." Ann shivered, moved a little away from Rinda, and then glanced at her surreptitiously to see if she had noticed.
Silly of her to move away from Rinda just because Rinda had admired her shoes. Just because Rinda had said, "Wear them today," didn't mean that she wanted to see Ann break her neck.
But she must be careful. Little things, such as instinctively moving away from Rinda—those were the things she must guard against because they were the things that would betray her. I must be losing my mind, she thought angrily, helplessly, yet her body was taut with strain and there didn't seem to be any way she could rid herself of the fear.

They reached the foot of the stairs, went through the hall, and out the front door into the sunshine. Laurie was already behind the wheel of the convertible when the top of the blue car was down and the sunbeams played familiarly in Laurie's hair. She was racing the motor, the car door was open, and Ann knew, suddenly and irrevocably, that she couldn't wait with them. She couldn't. She was afraid.
Of what? She cried out silently, standing there on the porch of the big old-fashioned house. Your sister? Rinda? Do you think either of them wants to see you dead? Rather than alive? Why would they?

Laurie looked up immediately and Ann said, weakly, "I can't go." Rinda had started down the steps but she stopped stock-still, turned around, peered up at her. Rinda said, "What's the matter, Ann? Is something wrong?" She wished her lips wouldn't persist in being so dry, her throat so tight. "It's my head," she said. "It's bursting. Migraine, I guess. I've had it all morning but I thought it would get better." How easily the lies came to her lips. "I'm sorry, Rinda, but I'd better go to bed."
"Come on," Laurie called and Rinda, giving Ann an anxious look, went down to the car and explained.
Laurie looked up, her face instantly concerned.
"You do look a little green around the gills," she said candidly. "What a shame. Shall I tell Rush better luck next time?" Ann felt only a sweeping relief that Laurie didn't argue, didn't protest, offer to call off the whole luncheon. When Rinda said, in her soft voice, "I'll come with you and tuck you in," she was able to say swiftly, "Oh, no!" Then, lest her refusal seems too abrupt, she added, "I'll be all right. And you mustn't take the time."
"That's right," Laurie said. "Tommy loathes being kept waiting."
Rinda said, reprovingly, "You shouldn't spoil him before you're married, Laurie." and Laurie laughed, knowingly, and said,

AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Ione Sandberg Shriber © BY IONE SANDBERG SHRIBER; DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

In her mind's eye she saw once again the gardener plunging to his death. She heard his scream of terror as he fell. Had it been an accident? Or had the bridge been supposed to collapse—not when Luke stepped upon it, but when Ann did.

"Someone did that for me before I got the chance."
"I hate leaving you," Rinda said and Ann replied, "Nonsense. I'd much rather be alone during one of these bouts. You have fun. And eat so much we won't have to worry about dinner. It's maid's day out, you know."
She watched them drive off and then sat down on the steps of the porch. She leaned back against a pillar. She felt oddly breathless, as though she had overexerted herself. She looked at her watch. She had watched the postman brought his Ford sedan to a stop in front of her, leaned companionably out of the window, the mail for Tophill clutched in his weatherbeaten hand.
"Hot, ain't it?" He held out a magazine, a book, three or four letters. "You didn't fare so well today. Mostly bills, looks to me."
Ann smiled but her thoughts, inside her head, were whirling like dust motes in a shaft of sunlight. Crazy. What would he say, she wondered, if I told him someone is trying to kill me? Would he believe me? Could I make him believe me?
The post man said anxiously, "You all right, Miss Bancroft?"
You look a little peaked. The heat, mumble.
She sighed and said, yes, wasn't it hot? and, reassured, he drove off down the driveway.
She pulled herself to her feet. It took a certain amount of effort. She had to get to her room. She wouldn't feel any semblance of safety until she was inside her own room with the door locked. She'd lie down. Maybe when she was out of this blinding sunshine, this hot glare, she would resolve herself, become normal again.
She didn't realize until she was inside her room and had locked the door that she was panting slightly. Her head did hurt. That was funny, after she'd made up the headache on the spur of the moment.
She sat down on the edge of the bed. Her weight made the green chintz dust ruffle crumple slightly on the carpet. She looked at the letters she held in her hand. Three weeks ago it had been Rinda's letter.
The top letter was a far cry from the fashionable stationery Rinda had used to say she was coming to Tophill. The address scrawled in almost childish letters was a far cry, too, from Rinda's distinctive penmanship. The envelope looked as though it came from a five and ten. She frowned at the postmark.
Cheyenne, Cheyenne, Wyoming. Who on earth was writing to her from there? She didn't know a soul in the whole state of Wyoming, let alone Cheyenne. She slid her finger along the poorly glued envelope, drew out two sheets of lined paper, read the penciled words.
"Dear Mrs. Bancroft," the letter read, "I would of sent you a bill before but I was called home suddenly by the death of my father. Now that I am back here I have decided to stay so I am enclosing a bill for the work I done on the bridge in the garden the week before I left. I would of told Luke but I didn't see him before I left that he better have someone check the bridge again in about six months because when one is exposed to all kinds of weather that way it's easy for it to get frayed. Right now it's in A-1 shape and you shouldn't have trouble with it before fall. If you'll send the check to 21 Ford St., Cheyenne, Wyoming, I'd sure be real obliged. It was signed J. M. Stark."

Dazedly she looked at the second sheet of the letter. It was a bill. For $7.50. For inspection and work on the swimming bridge in the Bancroft garden the 23rd of May.
You shouldn't have any trouble with it before fall.
Fall!
This man—this person whom she had never seen, J. M. Stark—had been in the Bancroft garden on the twenty-third of May. He had checked the pretty little swinging bridge that was, after all, only a scenic addition to the garden, a whim, you might say, of the landscaper architect.
But it wasn't true! It couldn't be true! It just simply did not dare be true!
Today was the seventh of June. This Mr. Stark had checked the bridge a week before Decoration Day. He had checked it and left it in A-1 shape exactly one week before the accident.
Accident? Had it been an accident? The thought, like some evil imp, had been waiting to pounce. It had been there in the back of her brain all the time, lurking, knowing she would have to recognize it.

What should a mother teach her daughter? To worship God; to speak the truth; to keep herself clean, morally and physically; to accept her responsibilities in life, and to feel that something more is expected of her than just to be a dressed-up doll and a pretty plaything.
From the time a girl baby is old enough to understand anything at all, her mother should begin teaching her how to be a woman, with credit and profit to herself and pleasure to all who come in contact with her. For being a woman is no easy job and it takes a lot of know-how and skill to make a success of it.
First, then, Mother should begin her basic treatment by trying to teach her daughter to be a lady, and look like a lady, and act like a lady, and talk like a lady. Of course, to the bobby-soxers this will seem like something that Grandma brought down from a trunk in the attic. Most of them don't even want to be ladies. Their ambition is to be glamorous and to look sultry and as if they had just broken all of the Ten Commandments.
This may get them a good time for a little while, but be not deceived. It doesn't last. And it doesn't lead to the altar. When a man who is worth having gets married, he wants a lady for a wife, not a roughneck. Whether a girl wants to marry or to have a career, she can have no better asset than just being a lady.

Accidents, one of the most important causes of death in this country, are responsible for a great deal of crippling. According to a recent article on this subject in the Journal of the American Medical Association, most accidents do not "just happen." Most of them could and should be prevented.
Some progress in this direction has already been made. The National Safety Council has figured that if accident causes were reduced at the same rate as in 1913, 350,000 of us would have died of accidents since that time.
Many ways of cutting down on accidents are possible. In 1944, 1963, the Federal Bureau of Investigation between automobiles and trains in the United States. If more railroad crossings were replaced by underpasses or overpasses, therefore, one would expect this type of accident far less frequently.
Many accidents, especially to elderly people, have been caused by slipping in the bathtub. The use of rubber mats and hand grips would help to prevent this type of accident. Putting gates at the head of stairways would keep small children from falling down stairs, and screening fireplaces would prevent a certain number of accidents from burning.
Falls down basement stairs are common, but good lighting on the stairs would cut this hazard. People should also realize the danger of placing pails, brooms, and other things on or near stairs.

Accidents are such an important cause of death and serious injury that all methods of reducing them should be pushed to the limit.
QUESTION: Is cracking of the knuckles anything to worry about?
ANSWER: Cracking joints are particularly common in the knees and fingers. Snapping sounds in the joints are always common. These are always caused by slipping of tendons over part of the cartilage or bone of the joint. If nothing else is present besides the cracking or snapping, there is little to worry about.
Sooner or later, Recognition was a certainty. A sure thing. A lead pipe cinch.
In her mind's eye she saw once again the gardener, Luke, plunging to his death. She heard his scream of terror, of agony, as he fell; she saw the picnic basket as it hurtled through the soft spring air, its contents spilling out. What should a mother teach her daughter? To worship God; to speak the truth; to keep herself clean, morally and physically; to accept her responsibilities in life, and to feel that something more is expected of her than just to be a dressed-up doll and a pretty plaything.
From the time a girl baby is old enough to understand anything at all, her mother should begin teaching her how to be a woman, with credit and profit to herself and pleasure to all who come in contact with her. For being a woman is no easy job and it takes a lot of know-how and skill to make a success of it.
First, then, Mother should begin her basic treatment by trying to teach her daughter to be a lady, and look like a lady, and act like a lady, and talk like a lady. Of course, to the bobby-soxers this will seem like something that Grandma brought down from a trunk in the attic. Most of them don't even want to be ladies. Their ambition is to be glamorous and to look sultry and as if they had just broken all of the Ten Commandments.
This may get them a good time for a little while, but be not deceived. It doesn't last. And it doesn't lead to the altar. When a man who is worth having gets married, he wants a lady for a wife, not a roughneck. Whether a girl wants to marry or to have a career, she can have no better asset than just being a lady.

Accidents, one of the most important causes of death in this country, are responsible for a great deal of crippling. According to a recent article on this subject in the Journal of the American Medical Association, most accidents do not "just happen." Most of them could and should be prevented.
Some progress in this direction has already been made. The National Safety Council has figured that if accident causes were reduced at the same rate as in 1913, 350,000 of us would have died of accidents since that time.
Many ways of cutting down on accidents are possible. In 1944, 1963, the Federal Bureau of Investigation between automobiles and trains in the United States. If more railroad crossings were replaced by underpasses or overpasses, therefore, one would expect this type of accident far less frequently.
Many accidents, especially to elderly people, have been caused by slipping in the bathtub. The use of rubber mats and hand grips would help to prevent this type of accident. Putting gates at the head of stairways would keep small children from falling down stairs, and screening fireplaces would prevent a certain number of accidents from burning.
Falls down basement stairs are common, but good lighting on the stairs would cut this hazard. People should also realize the danger of placing pails, brooms, and other things on or near stairs.
Accidents are such an important cause of death and serious injury that all methods of reducing them should be pushed to the limit.
QUESTION: Is cracking of the knuckles anything to worry about?
ANSWER: Cracking joints are particularly common in the knees and fingers. Snapping sounds in the joints are always common. These are always caused by slipping of tendons over part of the cartilage or bone of the joint. If nothing else is present besides the cracking or snapping, there is little to worry about.
Sooner or later, Recognition was a certainty. A sure thing. A lead pipe cinch.
In her mind's eye she saw once again the gardener, Luke, plunging to his death. She heard his scream of terror, of agony, as he fell; she saw the picnic basket as it hurtled through the soft spring air, its contents spilling out. She saw Luke fall and she heard him scream and she stood paralyzed, able only to think stupidly that she had spent an hour deviling the eggs that new lay at the bottom of the ravine. Beside the sprawled still body of a man.
An accident? Had it been an accident? Or had the pretty little bridge been supposed to collapse—not when Luke stepped upon it, but when Ann did?

Lindell or Keller to Play Left Field

By STAN OPOTOWSKY

New York, Feb. 14 — (UP) — The New York Yankees are sure they'll have a star performer playing left field at the start of the season, but today they couldn't decide whether it'll be Charley Keller or Johnny Lindell.

Both are on the line ready to go. Lindell signed his contract yesterday, the last of the club's six outfielders to do so. Keller has been signed for several weeks and now is in Florida working out.

Lindell filled in ably for Keller when King-Kong went down with an injured back toward the end of last season. Johnny, who originally was brought to the Yanks from Newark as a pitching star, hit .500 in the World Series and got in a little heroism on the side by playing while sliding into second base.

Keller insists that he's ready to resume his duties now, but he won't really know until he gets under the gun this spring.

If Keller bugs down, then Lindell steps in, of course. But what if Charley holds up?

Well, don't be too surprised if Lindell winds up at first base. That first sack is the biggest cloud in Manager Bucky Harris' sky, since he's continually worried about the aging George McQuinn.

Bobby Brown has been mentioned for the position, but Lindell could play it. He did so quite well at Oakland and at Birmingham.

At any rate, the future looks bright for Lindell. He got a "nice" raise on the second go-round with the Yanks, after rejecting their first offer.

Another Ex-Soldier Arrested for Taking Atomic Photographs

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 13 — (P) — Indictment and arrest of another former soldier on charges of taking secret photographs from the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic project was disclosed today.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Maurice Sanchez said the ex-soldier, Fred Gerard Michaels, 28, was arrested in Rochester, N. Y., last night by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He was indicted by a federal grand jury which reported its findings late yesterday. U. S. Dist. Judge Colin Nebbett fixed Michaels' bond at $5,000.

Formerly a sergeant in the Los Alamos photography department, Michaels was accused of stealing and concealing both classified and unclassified pictures on June 23, 1946, the same year he was discharged from the army. He was transferred there Dec. 22, 1943.

Michaels is the sixth former soldier to be accused of taking classified information from the Los Alamos project.

Sanchez said he was forwarding a warrant for Michaels and a certified copy of the indictment to the U. S. attorney in Rochester. The government will seek Michaels' removal here for trial on the charge, he said.

Nubbins Leaves Hospital for Home

Denver, Feb. 13 — (P) — Six year old Forest (Nubbins) Hoffman has left a Denver hospital for his Cheyenne, Wyo., home, still a winner against the illnesses that have threatened his life since 1944.

Nubbins was feled in November that year to an early Christmas when it was feared he would not survive until Santa Claus' usual visiting day.

He suffered then from a bladder disorder and resulting complications have damaged his kidneys. He underwent surgery last fall and again early this year. He left the hospital yesterday.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh B. Fullerton, Jr.

Hope Cagers Split Pair at Arkadelphia

Hope split a couple of games at Arkadelphia last night with the Juniors again winning 23 to 22 while the Senior Bobcats lost by a 46 to 33 score.

William (Buddy) Sutton led the scorers with 14 points, followed by Green of the Baggers with 13.

Major Upset Turned in By Cincinnati

By TED MEIER

New York, Feb. 14 — (P) — Cincinnati came through with a major upset in college basketball last night. The midwest club, beaten in six previous games, whipped powerful Duquesne, 55-41.

Duquesne, previously beaten only once in 16 start games, first led the Beacats took a 26-13 halftime edge, withstood a Duke rally that cut the score to 31-30, then pulled away.

Tulsa threw a scare into St. Louis in a Missouri Valley conference game. Tulsa led the once-beaten Billikens at halftime, 27-26, but faded in the last 20 minutes.

Kansas, the early leader in the Big Seven conference, dropped a 52-50 verdict to Iowa State and dropped further down in the conference standings.

Utah and Denver kept on the heels of Brigham Young in the sky line six conference games. Utah whipped the Colorado Aggies, 37-33. Denver nosed out Wyoming, 40-37.

Stanford surprised in the Southern Division of the Pacific Coast Conference by overwhelming UCLA 64-47. It was Stanford's first conference win. California kept its lead with a narrow 48-47 decision over Southern California. A free throw by Al Wolfe in the last 15 seconds provided the winning point.

California, with a 5-0 league mark, now is virtually assured the championship of the division.

Arkansas, beaten twice last week by Baylor kept alive its fading title hopes by beating Texas Christian 37 to 30, in the Southwest Conference. The New Mexico Aggies upset Arizona, 58-56, in the Southwest Border conference.

Demaret Holds 4-Stroke Lead at Harlingen

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 14 — (P) — Goldom's chunk of color, handsome Jimmy Demaret, held a four-stroke advantage today in a field of 71 in the $10,000 lower Rio Grande valley open.

Demaret, who gives Ojai, Calif., as his address, led the way into the third round with a 13-under-par 129 for 36 holes as the result of a great card in yesterday's round. He gave the 6,045-yard par 35-36-71. Harlingen municipal course a severe drubbing with a blazing 64.

Dapper Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, leading money-winner of the year to date, edged in to second place with a 66 that gave him a total of 133; while Big Clayton Heafner, the Charlotte, N. C., blond, fell into third spot one stroke ahead of Mangrum. Haefner had a 69 yesterday.

In a tie for fourth at 136 were Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill. These four were double-bogged at 137. Gary Middleoff of Memphis, Tenn.; Ot Greiner of Baltimore, Md.; Al Smith of Winston Salem, N. C., and Ellsworth Vines of Chicago.

Demaret showed eight birdies on his card and one par hole on which he went over par by 20. 15 where his tee shot was short of the green on the 145-yard hole.

Other scores:

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark. 68-70; 138.

Dick Metz, Arkansas City, Kas. 4-67 — 141.

Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, Kas. 69-72 — 141.

Leland Gibson, Kansas City, Kas. 69-72 — 142.

Lloyd Wadkins, Odessa, Tex. 67-70 — 146.

Shorts and Shells

Lou Little, who is considering a shift from Columbia to Yale as coach and athletic director, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who will be installed as Columbia's president in June, are old coaching rivals. Back in 1924, Eisenhower coached the Third Army Corps (that was beaten by Little's Georgetown outfit). At least four National League clubs are interested in "taking a chance" on Ray Sanders, the Braves spare first baseman, but Billy Southworth wants to see Ray in spring training before he okays any deals.

Porkers Find TCU Tough But Win 37-30

Fayetteville, Feb. 14 — (P) — The University of Arkansas Razorbacks turned on the heat early in the second half and defeated Texas Christian University, 37-30, in a game that was a real battle.

Frogs started last night in one of the slowest Southwest Conference basketball games played here in years.

The two teams will close the two-game series tonight.

Playing a deliberate ball-handling game, the Frogs managed to keep within range of the usually high-scoring Arkansas in the first half. The Razorbacks had only a 16-15 lead at halftime.

Arkansas registered 11 points while holding TCU to two in the first eight minutes of the second half and the Razorbacks were 30-15 at the half.

Frogs closed the gap some.

Arkansas, which controlled a majority of the rebounds with its superior height, was paced as usual by big George Kok, who dumped in 19 points. Keady and Schmidt led the Frogs with nine each.

The victory kept alive the Razorbacks' faint hopes for a part of the Southwest championship. Arkansas could share the crown by winning the rest of its games if Baylor loses two of its three remaining tilts. Should Baylor lose at three and Arkansas win five in a row, the Razorbacks would be alone in the pack. Baylor, however, is expected to sweep its contests.
